Autopsy Questioned

NEW YORK—A Florida physician might have been convicted in 1966 for his wife's murder because of an autopsy report falsified by the late city medical examiner, Milton Helpern, and his chief toxicologist, The New York Daily News reported Sunday.

According to the News, detective Lt. Tom Cavanagh, who retired three years ago, said Helpern falsified the report because he was feuding with F. Lee Bailey, who defended Dr. Carl Coppolino at his murder trial 12 years ago.

Cavanagh could not be reached for comment Sunday.
